OTHER EXPERIENCE

Mac Genius, Apple Computer, Richmond, VA 8/2004-Present

I started working for the Apple Store as a part-time Mac Specialist. My responsibilities were initially focused on sales, however I quickly proved myself as one of the top performers and was given further responsibilities including teaching workshops, one-on-one training and working on store visuals and displays. I was promoted to full-time Mac Specialist in the Summer of 2005 and then to Creative in the Fall of 2005. The Creative position focused specifically on delivering one-on-one training to ProCare customers on subjects ranging from "Getting Started" to Final Cut Pro and ongoing training for the store's employees. In the Fall of 2006 I was promoted to Mac Genius and now I am responsible for troubleshooting customers' computers at the Genius Bar, as well as checking in and performing any necessary repairs all in a timely yet efficient manner. Being a Mac Genius requires advanced knowledge of not only the Macintosh hardware and OS, but many of its supporting applications, as well as the ability to work with a team, and the ability to explain very technical ideas in an easy-to-understand way.

Assistant Editor, YellowHouse Productions, Richmond, VA 4/2004-2/2005

Working as part of a small team, I helped edit the independent feature film, Hitiro the Peasant. The feature was shot on Canon XL-1s cameras using miniDV and our team edited over 100 hours of footage in Final Cut Pro.

Intern, Lee Brauer Photography, Richmond, VA Summer 2004

My main responsibilities were to retouch, color correct, and prepare scanned photographs for print using Photoshop. I also assisted with location and studio photo shoots, and developed 4x5 film from the shoots with a JOBO system.

Sales Consultant, CapitolMac, Richmond, VA 10/2002-7/2004

As one of the only sales consultants in this small Apple Reseller, I was responsible for managing the sales floor and assisting customers. As I mastered these objectives, I began to assist with the repairs and ultimately became the company's web designer.
